Second Annual Recting of One of Richmond's New Charities.

The second annual meeting of the Richmond Home for Ladies," situated on Seventh street between Clay and Leigh, was held last Monday at the Home. The attendance was fall and the meeting highly interesting. The matron and other officers were re-

Next Tuesday, the 13th, was fixed upon for the "donation party." The two preceding were highly successful, and it is hoped this will surpass them.

Twenty ladies have been received since the Home opened, two years ago, and will never again feel the dependence so painful to well-educated ladies. No fear of "the morrow" will again disturb their slumbers or harass their waking hours—causes hastening the death of thousands to-day. This and all kindred institutions for the aged marks a new era in Christian effort.

They must receive His divine blessing. The two large denominations in charge of this charity, with their connections in this city, should insure its success.
